

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

UNILOC UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, INC., et al.,

Plaintiffs,

v.

APPLE, INC.,

Defendant.

Case No. 18-cv-00364-PJH

ORDER DENYING MOTION TO STRIKE

Re: Dkt. Nos. 45, 57

Before the court are defendant Apple's motions to strike plaintiffs' ("Uniloc") First Amended Complaint (Dkt. 45) and to dismiss plaintiffs' Complaint (Dkt. 57). The matter is fully briefed and suitable for decision without oral argument. Accordingly, the hearing set for these two motions on April 11, 2018 is VACATED. Having read the parties' papers and carefully considered their arguments and the relevant legal authority, and good cause appearing, the court hereby rules as follows.

BACKGROUND

On June 30, 2017, Uniloc filed its original Complaint in this action in the Eastern District of Texas, asserting infringement of patents. Dkt. 1. On August 11, 2017, Apple filed a motion to dismiss Uniloc's Complaint. Dkt. 17. On August 22, 2017, this action was consolidated with other cases in the Eastern District of Texas, with the Lead Case determined to be Case No. 2:17-cv-00470-JRG (now 18-cv-00362-PJH). Dkt. 23.

On October 4, 2017, Uniloc and Apple filed a Joint Motion for Entry of an Agreed Docket Control Order. Uniloc USA, Inc. v. Apple Inc., Case No. 18-cv-00362-PJH (N.D. Cal.), Dkt. 40. The court entered the Joint Agreed Docket Control Order on October 5, 2017. Id., Dkt. 42. That Docket Control Order controlled this case. It reflected that the court consented to any pleading amendments through February 12, 2018, so long as the amendments did not assert new patents. Id. at 3.

On December 22, 2017, the Texas district court granted Apple's motion to transfer the consolidated cases to the Northern District of California. Dk. 32. On January 12, 2018, this case was transferred to the Northern District of California. Dkt. 32. On January 17, 2018, this case was assigned to Magistrate Judge Laporte. Dkt. 34. On January 25, 2018, Magistrate Judge jurisdiction was declined. Dkt. 36. On January 26, 2018, this case was reassigned to Judge Tigar. Dkt. 38. Uniloc filed its Amended Complaint on January 30, 2018. Dkt. 40. On February 21, 2018, this case was related with case 18-cv-00361, and on February 22, 2018, it was reassigned to this court. Dkts. 49–50.

DISCUSSION

A. Legal Standard

1. Motion to Strike

Rule 12(f) provides that the “court may strike from a pleading an insufficient defense or any redundant, immaterial, impertinent, or scandalous matter.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 12. The function of a motion to strike is to “avoid the expenditure of time and money that must arise from litigating spurious issues by dispensing with those issues prior to trial.” Whittlestone, Inc. v. Handi-Craft Co., 618 F.3d 970, 973 (9th Cir. 2010) (citation and internal quotation marks omitted). To determine whether to grant a motion to strike under Rule 12(f), the court considers whether the matter the moving party seeks to have stricken is (1) an insufficient defense; (2) redundant; (3) immaterial; (4) impertinent; or (5) scandalous. Id. at 973–74.

Motions to strike are not favored and “should not be granted unless it is clear that the matter to be stricken could have no possible bearing on the subject matter of the litigation.” Colaprico v. Sun Microsystem, Inc., 758 F. Supp. 1335, 1339 (N.D. Cal. 1991). When a court considers a motion to strike, it “must view the pleadings in a light most favorable to the pleading party.” In re 2TheMart.com, Inc. Sec. Litig., 114 F Supp. 2d 955, 965 (C.D. Cal. 2000).

B. Analysis

Apple moves to strike Uniloc’s amended complaint based on arguments that Uniloc violated Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 15. Rule 15 provides in relevant part that “A party may amend its pleading once as a matter of course within . . . 21 days after service of a responsive pleading or 21 days after service of a motion under Rule 12(b), (e), or (f), whichever is earlier . . . [or] with the opposing party’s written consent or the court’s leave. The court should freely give leave when justice so requires.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(a)(1)–(2). Apple argues that Uniloc did not obtain Apple’s consent nor the court’s leave to file an amended complaint after the 21-day deadline had passed. Apple further argues that, even if the district court in Texas granted Uniloc leave to file the amended complaint, the schedule providing that leave became inapplicable after the case was transferred. Dkt. 45 at 4.

Plaintiffs argue that the court’s October 5, 2017 order permitted amended pleading through February 12, 2018, so long as Uniloc did not assert additional patents. Dkt. 51 at 1–2. Uniloc filed its amended pleadings on January 30, 2018, and it did not assert any additional patents.

FRCP 15(a)(2) allows a party to amend its pleading with “the courts’ leave.” Judge Gilstrap of the Eastern District of Texas issued an order allowing amended pleadings through February 12, 2018, noting specifically that “It is not necessary to seek leave of Court to amend pleading prior to this deadline unless the amendment seeks to assert additional patents.” Uniloc USA, Inc. v. Apple Inc., Case No. 18-cv-00362-PJH (N.D. Cal.), Dkt. 42 at 3.

No party has identified an order contradicting or superseding Judge Gilstrap’s order with respect to the deadline to file amended pleadings, nor has this court been able to identify such an order. Given that the order was never vacated, it was reasonable for Uniloc to rely on that order and believe it was complying with Rule 15(a)(2)—with “the

1 court's leave" to amend—when it filed its Amended Complaint on January 30, 2018
2 without asserting additional patents.

3 CONCLUSION

4 For the foregoing reasons, Apple's motion to strike Uniloc's Amended Complaint is 5 DENIED. As such, Apple's motion to dismiss Uniloc's non-operative Complaint is
6 DENIED as MOOT. Apple has 21 days from the date of this order to respond to Uniloc's
7 First Amended Complaint.

8 It is further ORDERED that the case management schedule order filed as the
9 "Docket Control Order" in Uniloc USA, Inc. v. Apple Inc., Case No. 18-cv-00362-PJH
10 (N.D. Cal.), Dkt. 42 is VACATED. The court will set a new case management schedule
11 following the initial case management conference before this court scheduled for April 26, 12 2018.
